TOBACCO. First, let the HORSE HEAD BRAND be mentioned. A purchaser went to a Sales' Stable The hostler led out for inspection a horse in good condition and smooth-coated. The buyer, however, thought he was too ancient for his use. The hostler, on the sly, injected a little of that Brand in a tiquid state into the horse's eye. The effect was magical. It restored the animal to equine youth ; and there was a soft revolver prancing around the yard. No hostler should

He had been suffering from time to time intense pain, through the effects of a painful disease, and it is believed that this was the cause of the rash act by which he has placed himself beyond the reach of such torture. A verdict of "temporary insanity" was brought in by the jury, at an inquest held on Tuesday afternoon. The circumstances of the case as disclosed at the inquest appear to be a follows: Mr. Tibbets has been confined to his bed for something like five months past suffering, great pain from a disease of the bladder. The pain was incessant, night and day, and the only relief from it was through the use of morphia as prescribed by his medical attendant. Early on Tuesday morning, while Mr. Wm. B. Wright, with whom Mr. Tibbets lived, and Mrs. Tibbets were at breakfast, Mr. Tibbets came out of the room. When spoken to he said he wanted some Hunjadi Janos remedy and Mrs. Tibbets went to make some warm for him. Later he sent Mr. Wright to town for some medicine and shortly afterwards, about 9:30, he went out into the yard and shot himself. One of the men connected with the place heard the shot and running in the direction of the chicken pen, from whence the sound came, found deceased lying on his back with the gun upon his breast and one gun was a double-barreled one which Mr. Tibbets always kept in his room. Deceased was a native of Berwick, Maine, and was about 49 years of age. He has been residing in Honolulu for great number of years, and was a member of the firm of Tibbets & Sorenson, ship-builders.

The Law as to Betting

In the Police Court on Tuesday last, F Wolcott sued Frank Higgins for the recovery of $50, being cash paid by Plaintiff to Defendant, on a bet made at Kapiolani Park, on a horse race, between Lehua and Why Not, run on the 27th August. The action was brought under the 5th Section of Chapter 39 of the Penal Code, It was agreed that plaintiff had put up $50 and defendant $40, and on the result of the race being announced, the defendant received $90. The money was not paid with the consent of the so. Defendant said he told plaintiff he had received the money, and he, (plaintiff,) said defendant was welcome to it. Plaintiff afterwards came and said he was swindled and he would sue for the money. The counsel for the defend there has been no expectation of recovery since ant, Mr. Russell, submitted that the transaction did not come within the meaning of the Act, and cited authorities to show that horse racing has been legalized in England, and was therefore not considered gaming. His Honor gave judgment for plaintiff for $50 and costs $4.40

box from Wiseman, saying "I'll be responsible

In cross-examination Fox said he saw Hales hand Hawaiian bills to the pool-seller and receive tickets in exchange. He did not see Wiseman buy pools. When the box was taken from him by Hales he did not object. Hales said he had not time to give a receipt for it. J. F. Colburn testified that he bought pools on the Mark Twain and Blackthorn race and received his

On Thursday, J. E. Wiseman and H. Hales were arraigned under the same Act, but criminally for gaming. A warrant was sworn out against these two parties by T. McClellan, and they were arrested accordingly on the 5th inst. Notwithstanding this testimony, which does not and on the motion of the Crown, the hearing was set down for the 8th instant. In the meantime the accused had to give bail to the extent of $1000 each. The prosecution called Mr Lemon, Mr. Fox, J. F. Colburn, Capt. Tripp, T McClellan, C. B. Wilson and J. C. Garrett witnesses against the defendants. Mr. Lemon deposed that he allowed pools to be sold in the Commercial Hotel. Mr. Fox, barkeeper for the first witness, testified that Wiseman acted as bookkeeper and issued tickets at the said pools. After the sales were over the box containing the money and the tickets was placed in the iron safe in the barroom. On the following day, though he had strict orders from Mr. Lemon, not to allow the box to go out of his possession, the opened the safe to allow Wiseman to take out tickets, books, and a few small notes for change, ing the pool box from Lemon's. Pools were sold, and he contended there was no law against them nor against betting. Neither was there a law against horse racing. To find the defendants guilty, the game in which they were concerned must be shown to be unlawful. He held there was no Chapter in the Penal Code which would warrant a conviction. There was no accusation of fraud and even if there was it would not affect the issue. The principal in this matter was the auctioneer. D. L. Green, but he does not seem to have been complained against but allowed to leave the country quistly. Hales had been seen buying pools, but there was no evidence that he had won or lost, or that the pools had been settled. The learned counsel dwelt on put upon the law by implication. -Wiseman was employed by Green and received commission as wages. He considered this a matter for the Legislature to regulate, but so far they had not done so. Mr. Preston, counsel for the Crown. said horse racing is not legalized in this country, and it is a game, purely a game of chance as it is not the best horse always wins. He did not wish to show fraud. He considered Wiseman guilty by aiding, citing and encouraging the game for profit. Hales made himself responsible by taking the box from Wiseman. It was not the object of the Government to ask for an extreme penalty, but he considered it rotten and bad to swindle the public generally. The public must be protected against these arts and devices. Betting pools, and sweeps are illegal and render persons oncerned in them liable to the statute. A REVIVAL. Revered Editor .- Street Talk is usually eatirical and critical, and the above caption may lead you, Sir, to reject at once my lucubration, as a satire on religion. But pray read on. I could not hope for a moment that you would give publicity to a criticism on religion; but I thought you might, on some of its professors. Sir, with all my quips; and chaff, and jeer at many things, plaintiff. He told the stakeholder not to pay let me say, that I am the son of Christian paover the money, but he said he had already done | rents, and have believed in the redemption of the world by Christ, taught by a mother, since my tenderest years. Therefore I am in accord and sympathy, at once, with a revivalist who proclaims this truth. But I have thought that he should not confine his zealous exhortation to those who have not heard or heeded the gospel; but should proclaim it to those, who having heard, and professed, yet present none of the evidences of its holy influence in their lives; therefore I trust that there may be

STREET TALK

By Don.

A REVIVAL IN OUR CHURCHES. And that charity may so abound; that our religious Hawaiian society shall manifest only courtesy and good will, and think no evil. But it is not my reflections; but the expressions of men on the street, I want to communicate, Pete, was at the Fort St. meeting. He is broken in spirit, in pocket, and seedy in his garments. He needs a revival. Said he; "Don, man is a vain creature, and if he has nothing big to show off, he is content to parade his sins, or his sores. And he will brag of his relations with the Lord; exclaiming: " I am on the Lord's side, and I dont care who knows it." i'm a publican and a sinner; as you know; but I dont care about setting up any pretensions on that account. I bonestly want to be revived; but I want a revival, in body as well as soul. What's the use of a salvation, that dont begin right away? If conversion means easy credit in stores; or a soft job at $100 a month, then there's something in it.'

Said I; " Pete, drop your slurs. There is a true religion, and there are those who find in it. something that lifts them above all jobs, or

"That's so, no doubt;" replied Pete; as he belped himself to a cigar lying on my table which having lit, he mumbled out the following, as he wallowed the Havana around in his jaw. "That's so, Don, no doubt. There are, I believe men and women, with souls raised by religion above this planet; but we dont see em around here. Our religious folks cling to the dirt, as close as you or I do. Their grip on the world, is what makes us want to hold on. It's no use talking about vanity, when a man's pocket's full o' vanities." "I suppose you want a new deal," I put in

" No, Don, I mint for upsetting things. I aint no minibist, communist, or sand-lotter. But when men talk religion to me, I want to feel that they have got it, like those of old, who had all things in common. I want to feel that they will turn out with their carriage and the band for a poor regenerated soul, as readily as they would for a soulless money bag, decorated the with grand cross of the Honorable Bilks. The Lord wants, what everybody wants, an honest heart; even if it has bruised around. He dont want religious prigs; the subject of gaming, as compared with horse racing, and said that an undue construction was nor poor scalawags like me. Good Lord, Don. I am praying all the time for a better heart, Would any body turn his back on a Savior? But when those who ery out " seek the Savior;" are looking out so confounded sharp for themselves, I am not inclined to look their way. Now, Don, don't smile your smirk at me, as though I were a dead beat, that would like to testify in meeting if I thought it would pay. I believe in a hereafter. I believe that there is a God over all. And I am not so degraded as to hope that by professing this belief I would get credulous religious folks to set me no on account of my professed regeneration. But I want to see the so-called sanctified show the heart of love they profess to have. Let them be willing at all times to sit down with a seedy man. Let them look him up in his narrow musty lodging. Let them take him out to drive behind their handsome team. Perhaps that's too much. Don, for such fellows as me to ask. Why should I want to force fellowship on men-Christians or otherwise? Well, I don't. Poor old Pete is proud. But this is a fact, Don, that one bit of kindly, cordial, brother fellowship, tendered perhaps at a time of need, is worth all the preaching in the world; and those who have got religion, and plenty of this world's goods, can get up a revival at any time, when they go forth with their hearts in their hands."

I was touched by the carnestness of Pete's remarks, and showed some feeling of interest. when he said, " Don, lend me five dollars," instantly felt that Pete was taking advantage of my sympathy. But I knew that he sorely needed a little belp,-and I was willing to make an offering on the altar of my awakened emotion; so I pulled out the coin, and handed it to him. Pete clutched my hand with both of his, as tears started in his eyes, exclaiming, " Don, old fellow! this is religion. You know I am dead broke; and you believe me to be a sponge-yet you give me a lift as a brother. The Lord will reward you, if I don't." But Pete paid me back-(this is a fact)-and he roused up to work, and better things. And he has said that this lemonade, ginger ale etc., attracted crowds of little start was, in some sort, a touch of religion

> To the Editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser The editor of the Gazette, in sympathy with the Royal Hawaiian Commissioner of Immigration abroad, who denounces emigration to Hawaii, this week, referring to the excursion party from San Francisco to these Islands, remarks: "The minimum number of victims could not be found. We are glad of it. What will Hawaii nei come to if it is to be flooded with a sort of Cook's excursion." Let me say right here that ladies and gentlemen patronize "Cook's Excursions" in England, said for the benefit of this unpatriotic scribe, fet me tell him that such exarsions promote the welfare of countries they isit. Now it would be difficult to find the obection this individual has to persons bent on leasure visiting these shores, and it is reserved or one of the unco quid to prove that his set want to drive on in the old one-horse way they have been content to move in for the past twenty years or more, in endeavoring by all and every means to resist innovatious or improvements for the general good, and by laboring to hold as much power as they possibly can for their own selfish purposes, being supremely indifferent to the welfare of the Kingdom. This cankerworm is eating into the very vitals of these Islands and we will hail the day of deliverance when this unholy ring is broken and annihilated. I say let us have all San Francisco visit these beautiful Islands if they will, and let the long-eared scribe

A beautiful ladie s park phaeton, black as ebony and mounted in gold, has just been turned out by Mr. Rose, the carriage maker, for the American Consul, D. A. McKinley, Esq. Everybody who can afford a carriage, wants good taste, comfort, and durability combined; and these three pre-requisites are secured in this very." elegant and comfortable phacton. It is truly gratifying to see such fine finished work, executed entirely by our home artists and mechanics. Mr. Matthew Canavan is, the artist who gives: such perfect glossy finish to the vehicle; Mr. used for seat and back cushions, bears an exact resemblance to genuine Moroeco. An ingenious attachment to the seat, provides a place for little Miss when she rides with her parents. Altogether this phaeton is one of the best finish-
